DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 18 and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Roosendaal et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,731,360.

Roosendaal discloses [see Fig. 1, for instance] a method of manufacturing a liquid crystal display which has a pair of substrates [inherent] and a liquid crystal layer [12] interposed between the substrates and which has a reflective area [on left] and a transmissive area [on right], the method comprising the steps of forming a retardation film [16a] on at least one of the substrates, and patterning the retardation film such that the retardation film remains at least in the reflective area and the phase difference of the retardation film differs between the reflective area and the transmissive area [col. 5, lines 22-26, etc.]. Roosendaal does not (perhaps) explicitly disclose that an alignment film is formed on at least one of the substrates and the retardation film is formed on the alignment film.

However, Roosendaal does disclose manufacturing the patterned quarterwave foil by photo-polymerization of a reactive liquid crystal material, and states that “[these] materials get their orientation from thin polymer alignment films; similar to those used to orientate a liquid crystal layer” [col. 6, lines 4-8]. It would therefore have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to form an alignment layer between the substrate and the retardation film in Roosendaal, motivated by Roosendaal's teaching that this is the means by which the retardation film gets its orientation. Claim 18 is therefore unpatentable.

The retardation film is composed of a liquid crystal polymer [col. 6, lines 4-8], so claim 19 is also unpatentable.

4. Claim 20 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Roosendaal et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,731,360 in view of Kubota et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,771,334 and Kitagawa et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,404,469.

Roosendaal does not disclose that the liquid crystal polymer is obtained by curing an ultraviolet-curable liquid crystal monomer in a nematic phase. Kubota discloses an analogous device and teaches that the retardation film with differing regions can be obtained by curing a “UV crosslinking liquid crystal polymer” [col. 10, lines 34-40]. Kubota is silent on the nematic phase limitation; Kitagawa discloses such a compensator in a nematic phase [col. 3, lines 6-17]. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to make the retardation layer a liquid crystal polymer of such a composition (UV curable material) in a nematic phase, motivated by Kitagawa's teaching that the production process for such sheets is known and they are commercially available (reducing uncertainties and experimentation in manufacturing), and Kubota's and Kitagawa's teaching that they allow control of optical characteristics including retardation. Claim 20 is therefore unpatentable.
